

Expanding Boundaries in Drug Development

The drug discovery and development process is complex and risk-laden with more failures than successes.

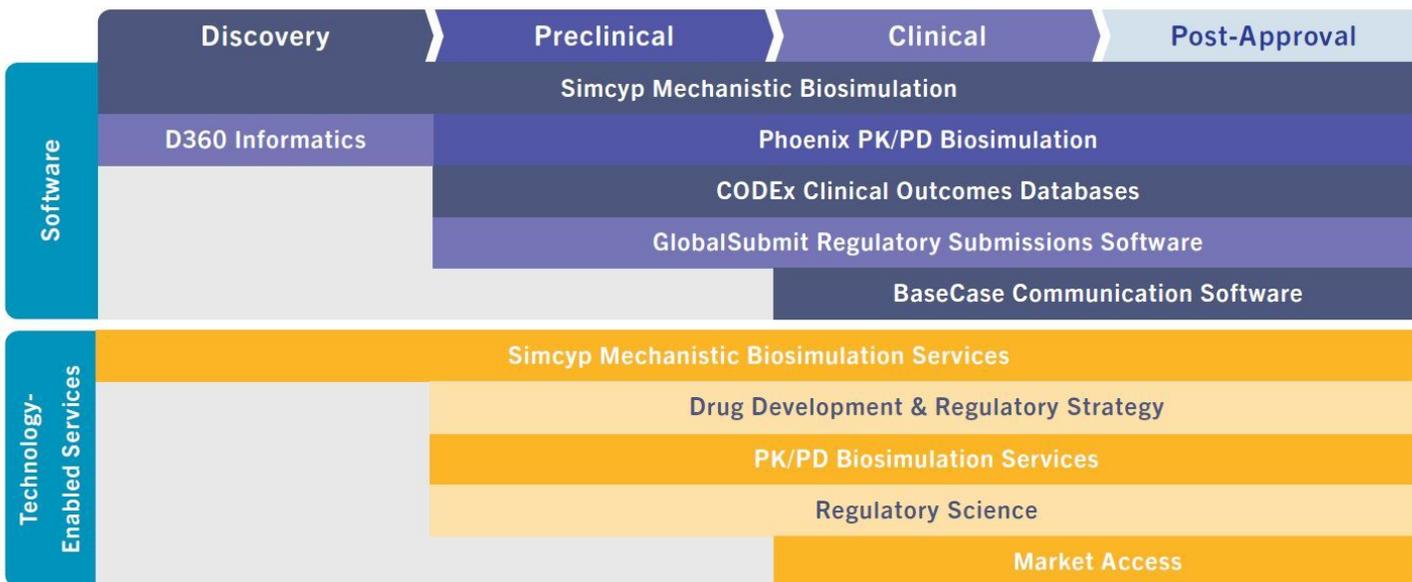

As your trusted partner, we accelerate medicines to patients, partnering with life science innovators. Together with our partners, we use biosimulation and technology-enabled services to transform drug discovery and development.

Our integrated and proprietary end-to-end platform with biosimulation, regulatory science, and market access solutions combined with our 900+ strong team of scientists and subject matter experts enable informed decision-making, higher R&D productivity, and improved patient outcomes. With our quantitative approach, we address your critical drug discovery and development decisions:

- How can dosing be optimized to maximize safety and efficacy?
- What is the probability of clinical trial success?
- How do we work with regulatory agencies to steer through uncertainty?
- What's the best way to assess and demonstrate maximum value of a new therapy?

Certara works across all therapeutic areas and innovative therapies, including immuno-oncology, rare disease, CNS, respiratory disease, gene therapy, and global health, providing translational solutions from discovery to patient access

End to End Platform

90%

Since 2014, our customers have received over 90% of new drug and biologic approvals by the FDA.

200+

global regulatory and health authority submissions were prepared and delivered in the past 4 years.

Customers First Focus

Your success is Certara's guiding principle. Trusted by more than 1,700 active customers across 61 countries, we are members of your team.

We design and implement drug development strategies using quantitative science and an integrated approach to:

- Get to proof of concept faster
- Optimize trial design
- Reduce trial size or avoid certain trials altogether
- Expedite regulatory submissions
- Expand patient access to medicines

Uncompromising Quality

The high quality of our work is the result of dedication, collaboration, and deep expertise.

By choosing to partner with Certara, you tap into the expertise and insights of more than 700 leading drug development, regulatory science, and market access solutions' experts who are committed to finding the right answers and increasing the probability of your success.

We navigate complexity through flawless execution and stewardship with our top scientists and experts in pursuit of your goals.
